

Weapons Law and the Legal Review of Weapons

Master legal reviews of weapons

Thematic cluster:

Security and Law

Course dates:

9 - 13 December 2019

Course location:

Geneva, Switzerland

States have a legal obligation to ensure that the weapons that are newly developed, manufactured or produced for their own armed forces are compliant with international law. Therefore, all States should conduct legal reviews of weapons at various stages in their manufacture or procurement. These reviews should be carried out by experts with a good understanding of the relevant legal provisions. This course will provide lawyers, diplomats and other officials with the knowledge and skills required for that purpose.

The course has been running since 2011 and is funded by the Swiss Government.

COURSE FOCUS:

The course learning cycle starts with knowledge transfer in presentation sessions, continuing with the practical application of that knowledge in small groups through case studies (practical experience) and leading to consolidated expertise and skills. This learning cycle is applied to each of the themes covered in the course:

- defining weapons, means and methods of warfare
- the evolution and sources of weapons law
- unnecessary suffering and indiscriminate weapons
- weapons and the environment
- nuclear, biological and chemical weapons
- missiles, bombs, firearms and bullets
- new weapons technologies

COURSE BENEFITS

As a participant, the course will enable you to:

- acquire new knowledge, tools and skills required to ensure your state's compliance with international weapons law
- exchange views among peers and experienced experts and practitioners in a neutral and open environment
- conceptualise and conduct a legal review of any category of new weapon
- develop your judgment and decision-making through practical case studies
- access an extensive network of experts in international affairs, law and security as a GCSP alumnus
