Peace and Security 2025

Challenging Assumptions, Thinking Ahead, and Managing Surprise

Monday, 25 January 2021 / Online Workshop

What will the international peace and security environment look like in 2025? Which issues will be the focus in 2025? How do we address the complexity of interconnections and speed of change? How can we most effectively respond in this changing landscape? Come join the GCSP online for an enriching half-day of discussion and exchange with a diverse group of experts and participants.

Workshop Focus

This workshop will provide you with a valuable mix of input from experts, rich discussion with diverse participants, and an opportunity to expand your professional network.

Over this half day you will explore with GCSP experts the international peace and security environment of 2025. Two sessions will anchor the workshop:

1) deep-dives into three topics – climate change, terrorism, and emerging technologies – followed by a discussion on the interconnections

and

2) actively exploring a 2025 skill set – related to crisis management, leadership, and strategic foresight – to employ in your work today.

Workshop Benefits

The workshop will provide a unique opportunity to gauge emerging security challenges as well as their interlinkages.

As a participant, you will get to:

- Enhance awareness of the skill-sets on – crisis management, leadership, strategic foresight – to be better prepared to respond to the peace and security environment of 2025.
- Gain familiarity with the security implications of emerging technologies and how long-standing issues, such as terrorism, are rapidly changing.
- Recognise the principal challenges of global issues, such as climate change, in an increasingly interconnected world.
